MBA FAIR MAP

PARTNERS

Event Do's and Don'ts:

Know why you want an MBA and ask specific questions designed to find out if the particular school's program is right for you.

Understand your post MBA career objectives and inquire about career placement in the region and/or field of expertise that is important to you.

Ask about items not readily apparent on the school's website such as diversity and student life.

Ask questions that let the admissions officers tell you what sets their school apart from the others.

DO NOT ask general school statistics or application questions that can be answered by a web search, such as "what is the average GMAT?". This will not leave a good impression on university representatives.

Many schools travel long distances to meet with you. While they are visiting your city, it is to your advantage to speak with and learn about as many schools as possible.
